Happiness And The Christian Moral

Happiness and the Christian Moral Life suggests that the heart of Christian ethics are not elements such as laws and rules and principles and obligations, but is an ongoing initiation into a way of life capable of making a person good and therefore, happy. These elements are important, but they should never overshadow what ought to be the principal concern of Christian ethics: how to form us into people who love the good and seek it in everything we do.

Happiness and the Christian Moral Life 3rd edition ...

The fashionable watchword this political season is morality.Left-wing voices, especially, are heard providing moral instruction. Here a moral, there a moral, everywhere the left is moral.

Morality, Anti-Morality, and the Left-Wing Great Hate-Hustle

The only possible way an atheist cannot have morality is to change the definition of morality. If you define morality as "a code of right and wrong invented by God", then of course an atheist cannot have that — no one can, since there is no god. Christians got the idea from the Bible: "The fool says in his heart, 'There is no God.'
